I know how to create a program that has two audio files, but what I do not know is the following: When using portaudio, how to convert text to sound and vice versa? Is there anyway to make a program by converting between text and sound? EDIT: I also have problems that the command line options are not recognized, which are shown in the top of the code and the makefile. This is my makefile: #INCLUDE_DIRS=${CURDIR} #LIBRARY_PATH=${CURDIR}/lib CFLAGS += -I/opt/local/include/ LFLAGS += -L/opt/local/lib # be sure that the system has portaudio lib LIBS += -L/opt/local/lib -lportaudio # build the program $(BIN)/program: $(OBJECTS) $(CXX) $(CFLAGS) -o $@ $* -lportaudio # How to build the program? $(BIN)/program: $(MAKE) A: This is a simplified example of the code from the example in the documentation. This code shows converting between text and sound. PortAudio v1.1.2 #include "pa_hostapi.h" #include "pa_stream.h" #include #include #include int main(void); void PStreamFinished(void *userdata, const PaStreamCallbackInfo *streamInfo, void *timeInfo) { // need to call Pa_CloseStream to release portaudio alloc'd resources Pa_CloseStream(streamInfo->inputStream); Pa_CloseStream(streamInfo->outputStream); } int main(void) { PaStreamParameters inputParameters, outputParameters, inputParameters2;
