What's New in the AutoCAD?

Add geometry to a drawing with `BEGIN_CUSTOM_MARKUP` commands. Define geometry in your drawing, and AutoCAD will automatically fill that geometry with additional objects, such as annotations. Create colored axes using the `RADAR_STYLE`, `RADAR_SHAPE`, `RADAR_FOV`, `RADAR_OVERSEAS_OFFSET`, `RADAR_TALLBASELINE`, and `RADAR_INVERSE_RADAR_SHAPE` commands. The `RADAR_STYLE` command sets the default radar style and the `RADAR_SHAPE` command determines the shape of the radar. Replace an object on a layer with a new object. Rather than creating a new object, the `NEW` command replaces the object on the layer with a new object that can be edited. Layers can be cleared or hidden from a drawing using the `SHOW` command. Add drawing style editing to the Ribbon. Edit drawings in the Drawing Tools tab, make changes to the style in the Manage Styles window, and save the changes. You can also save a drawing style as an Adobe Illustrator document (.ai) file. (video: 5:00 min.) Use the `DRAW` command to draw a shape based on a symbol on a layer. The `SYMBOL` command is only supported for the `BEZIER`, `LINE`, `POINT`, and `POLYLINE` shape types. (video: 0:45 min.) Change the color and opacity of a marker. A marker is a way to add a special appearance to a section of a drawing, such as a cross-hatch, pattern, or shaded area. You can specify the color and opacity for the marker. Add a new 3D object to your drawing. To create 3D objects, you can use the `XYZMESH`, `SOLIDMESH`, and `MESH` options in the `DRAW` command. View, manage, and share native 3D objects in your drawing. With AutoCAD's 3D Printing feature, you can generate native 3D objects that can be viewed and printed from your computer. You can also print a section of a drawing. Add, modify, and customize marks, including hatch, gradient, and 3D labels. Use symbols to define shapes and line styles. You can use symbols for hatch marks, vertical and horizontal lines, and gradients.
